REPORT

Introduction: The incorporation of project work or a Research Methodology course is a crucial aspect of undergraduate degree programmes. It aims to enhance students' practical skills, research capabilities, and understanding of their chosen field of study. This report outlines the guidelines for implementing these components in undergraduate degree programmes, with a focus on flexibility and academic rigor.

Objective: The primary objective of this initiative is to provide students with practical experience and theoretical knowledge in research methodologies and writing local history. By engaging in projects or theory courses, students will develop critical thinking, analytical, and communication skills essential for their academic and professional growth.

Implementation Guidelines:

Project Work:

Each undergraduate student is required to undertake a project of 2 credits.

The project should be conducted under the supervision of a faculty member.

The topic of the project should align with the student's area of interest and the curriculum objectives.

The project may involve empirical research, literature review, case studies, or practical applications, depending on the discipline.

Research Methodology Course on Writing Local History:

Alternatively, students may opt to write a theory course on Research Methodology focusing on Writing Local History.

This course should be designed to provide students with an in-depth understanding of research methodologies specific to local history writing.

PAZHASSIRAJA COLLEGE, DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY
DISSERTATION 2023-24

The syllabus for this course will be prepared by the concerned Board of Studies, ensuring coverage of essential topics such as archival research, oral history methods, historiography, and writing techniques.

Benefits:

Enhances students' research skills: Both project work and the Research Methodology course provide students with hands-on experience in conducting research, analyzing data, and synthesizing information.

Promotes faculty-student interaction: Supervision by faculty members fosters mentorship and facilitates personalized guidance, enhancing the learning experience.

Encourages interdisciplinary learning: Projects and theory courses allow students to explore interdisciplinary perspectives and apply knowledge from various fields.

Fosters critical thinking and creativity: Engaging in research activities encourages students to think critically, solve problems, and generate new ideas, fostering innovation and intellectual growth.

Conclusion: Incorporating project work and a Research Methodology course into undergraduate degree programmes is essential for nurturing well-rounded, research-oriented graduates. By providing students with opportunities to engage in practical research and theoretical study, colleges can equip them with the skills and knowledge necessary for success in academia and beyond. The flexibility offered in choosing between project work and a theory course ensures that the diverse needs and preferences of students are accommodated, contributing to a more inclusive and effective educational environment.

Summary of Dissertation Topics 2023-24

This report provides an overview of the dissertation topics submitted by 55 students as part of their BA History Dissertation for the partial fulfillment of the BA History Programme. The topics cover a diverse range of subjects related to the Wayanad district, reflecting the students' interests and research areas within the field of history and cultural studies.

1. Unveiling Educational Disparities: A Case Study of the Paniya Students in Wayanad District: This dissertation aims to investigate the educational disparities faced by Paniya students in the Wayanad district. The dissertations addressing educational disparities among marginalized communities, such as the Paniya students, highlight the importance of addressing socio-economic inequalities in access to education. These studies advocate for policies and interventions aimed at promoting inclusive education and bridging the gap between different socio-economic groups.
2. Cultural Heritage and Identity: Research focusing on rediscovering Jain tradition and exploring Kurichya customs underscores the significance of cultural heritage in shaping local identity and preserving cultural diversity. These studies contribute to the documentation and revitalization of indigenous traditions, enriching the understanding of Wayanad's cultural landscape.
3. Architectural Heritage and Religious Practices: The studies examining the history and architecture of the Tali Siva Temple provide insights into the region's religious practices and architectural heritage. By analyzing temple structures and religious rituals, these dissertations contribute to the documentation of religious heritage and its socio-cultural significance in Wayanad.
4. Archaeological Exploration and Historical Reconstruction: Dissertations focusing on prehistoric evidence and megalithic burials contribute to archaeological exploration and historical reconstruction of Wayanad's ancient past. Through archaeological surveys and artifact analysis, these studies shed light on early human settlements and burial practices, enriching our understanding of

While each dissertation topic provides valuable insights into specific aspects of Wayanad's history, culture, and socio-economic dynamics, a balanced approach to the overall research landscape is essential. Here are some key considerations for achieving balance:

5. Diversity of Topics: Ensure a diverse range of topics across different thematic areas such as education, culture, religion, archaeology, environment, and socio-cultural dynamics. This ensures that a comprehensive understanding of Wayanad's heritage and contemporary issues is presented.
6. Representation of Marginalized Communities: Pay attention to the representation of marginalized communities in research topics. While topics such as educational disparities among Paniya students are crucial, it's also essential to explore the cultural heritage and socio-economic dynamics of other marginalized groups in Wayanad.
7. Interdisciplinary Perspective: Encourage an interdisciplinary perspective in research topics to foster holistic understanding and analysis. For example, dissertations exploring the intersection of culture and environment or the socio-economic implications of archaeological findings offer a nuanced understanding of Wayanad's history and contemporary challenges.
8. Inclusion of Community Perspectives: Emphasize the inclusion of community perspectives and voices in research topics. Collaborative research approaches that involve community members, indigenous groups, and local stakeholders contribute to more inclusive and culturally sensitive research outcomes.
9. Balanced Coverage of Historical and Contemporary Issues: Maintain a balance between topics focusing on historical research and those addressing contemporary issues. While historical studies provide valuable insights into Wayanad's past, research on contemporary challenges such as environmental conservation, social equity, and sustainable development are equally important for informing present-day policies and interventions.

Methodological Approaches: Discuss the range of methodological approaches employed across the dissertations, recognizing the diversity of research methods utilized, from archival research and ethnographic studies to archaeological surveys and oral history interviews.

Historical and Contemporary Balance: Maintain a balanced representation of dissertations focused on historical topics and those addressing contemporary issues, demonstrating the program's commitment to both historical scholarship and relevance to present-day concerns.

Critical Analysis: Offer a balanced critical analysis of the strengths and limitations of each dissertation, acknowledging areas of innovation, theoretical contributions, and potential avenues for future research, while also addressing any methodological challenges or gaps in the studies.

Student Contributions: Highlight the individual contributions of each student to the collective body of research within the BA History program, recognizing their unique perspectives, insights, and scholarly endeavors.

By ensuring balance in these areas, the report effectively showcases the diversity, depth, and significance of the dissertations submitted by students in the BA History program, providing a comprehensive overview of their research achievements and contributions to the field of history.

The compilation of dissertations submitted by 55 students offers a rich tapestry of insights into Wayanad's history, culture, and contemporary issues. Through a diverse range of topics spanning education, cultural heritage, religion, archaeology, environment, and socio-cultural dynamics, these studies provide a comprehensive understanding of the multifaceted nature of Wayanad's identity.

By addressing educational disparities, rediscovering traditional practices, examining architectural heritage, uncovering archaeological evidence, exploring environmental conservation efforts, and analyzing contemporary socio-cultural dynamics, these dissertations contribute to a holistic exploration of Wayanad's past and present.

The interdisciplinary approach adopted in these dissertations ensures that various perspectives and disciplines converge to provide a well-rounded understanding of Wayanad. Additionally, the inclusion of marginalized communities and community engagement efforts ensure that local voices and perspectives are represented, enriching the research outcomes and fostering inclusivity.

Overall, the dissertations serve as a testament to the importance of academic inquiry in understanding and addressing the complexities of Wayanad's socio-cultural landscape. By bridging the gap between academia and the community, these studies have the potential to inform policy-making, promote cultural preservation, foster social equity, and contribute to sustainable development in Wayanad and beyond.

Coverage of Topics: Ensure an equitable representation of each dissertation topic, providing adequate attention to the significance and findings of each study. This ensures that all students' research efforts are acknowledged and valued equally.

Thematic Diversity: Emphasize the diverse thematic areas covered by the dissertations, such as education, cultural heritage, religion, archaeology, environment, and socio-cultural dynamics. Highlighting the breadth of topics demonstrates the multifaceted nature of historical inquiry within the BA History program.

Community Involvement: Acknowledge any community involvement or engagement in the research process, particularly in studies focusing on marginalized communities or indigenous traditions. This ensures that the report reflects a balanced perspective that incorporates local voices and experiences.

ABSTRACT

ABSTRACT

Financial technology also known as FinTech is an evolving innovation overtime. It is a link between the financial industry, information technology (IT), and innovation. The term FinTech derives from the union of the words finance and technology. It means the development of technology and innovation to banking and financial with the latest technologies and also describes the relationship between technologies such as cloud computing and mobile internet, with financial services businesses such as loans, payments, money transfer and other banking. In recent years, the rise of FinTech's has attracted much attention since they challenge incumbent financial service companies including the traditional banking model. In this paper, the researcher aims to contribute to a better understanding of this phenomenon, and also to assess the enhanced financial inclusion among the rural women of Kozhikode district. FinTech firms are playing a significant role in bridging financial inclusion and gender gaps in India. Powered by mobile wallets, and many more recent innovations like the Unified Payment Interface (UPI) platform, the Indian consumers have welcomed the use of mobile payments in their regular day-to-day transactions. The researcher has taken Kozhikode- a major developing city in Kerala as the specified area for the study. The primary objective of the study is to analyses the frequency of FinTech Solutions usage among the rural women of Kozhikode district. And also, to assess the perceived ease of use, the perceived usefulness and the impact of FinTech Solutions on enhancing financial inclusion. The result indicates that an end user habit of using financial technology systems and services positively related to the system usability. It will also offer insights to the rural women engagement in FinTech solutions and therefore it leads to financial inclusion. Ease of use and convenience are the key factors that leads to offer mobile banking services to handle cross- border transactions for low- income customers in remote areas.

Keywords: FinTech, Financial Inclusion, Rural women, Kozhikode District.

ABSTRACT

This study examines the effectiveness of digital and hands-on reward systems across various age groups in promoting desired behaviours. Five age groups are included in the study: 18-22, 23-27, 28-32, 33-37 and above 37. The primary objective is to compare digital and hands-on reward system across various age groups. And there are three specific objectives for the study: To evaluate the knowledge of the public on the reward system available in the market, to evaluate the behaviour of the public towards the reward system, and to assess the elements influencing the consumers in terms of the reward system to purchase a product or service through social media.

It employs a quantitative methodology, utilizing a structured survey method. The data was collected with 200 respondents as the sample size through questionnaire format via Google Forms. Surveys measure participants' behavioural changes towards both reward systems: digital and hands-on. The primary finding of the study consumers who belong to 18 to 27 mostly prefer digital rewards because of the convenience and accessibility. Whereas consumers who lies in the age group of 27 and above prefer hands-on reward system for quality measurement and time management. This research highlights the age specific reward systems to maximize their effectiveness. Also, it provides valuable insights about implementing reward systems in various settings.

ABSTRACT

This study analyzes the techniques employed by filmmakers to convey the theme of crime in the true crime documentary "Curry and Cyanide: The Jolly Joseph Case" without graphically depicting violence. The documentary examines the shocking Koodathayi murders in Kerala, India, where a woman named Jolly Joseph is accused of killing six family members over a 14-year period. The research focuses on how the documentary conveys the theme of crime without depicting it in a cinematic way, yet still transmitting the depth and impact of the crimes. Through qualitative analysis, including scene-by-scene examination and expert interview, the study explores how techniques such as multiple narratives, archival footage, cinematic elements, and music are utilized to enhance the narrative without depicting violence explicitly. This study analyzes how the documentary employs multiple narrative perspectives to provide balance and depth in its portrayal of the crimes. It assesses the incorporation of actual footage, archival materials, and cinematic elements to enhance the storytelling. The research also examines how music and other techniques are used to heighten the emotional impact and underscore key moments in the crimes' depiction. The findings demonstrate that techniques such as multiple narratives, actual and archival crime footage, cinematic recreations, and incorporation of music enhance the depth of portraying the crimes without showing graphic violence. The documentary succeeds in leaving a lasting impression of the crimes through this intertwining of information and recreation. This study contributes insights into the narrative and information dissemination techniques employed in Malayalam true crime documentaries. It highlights the importance of these techniques in effectively conveying the theme of crime without relying on sensationalism or graphic depictions of violence.

ABSTRACT

This research delves into the representation of the queer community in Malayalam cinema, focusing on the 2023 film "Kathal" starring Mammootty and Jyothika. The film portrays the journey of a closeted gay man, Mathew (Mammootty), navigating a heterosexual marriage while preparing to contest a local election. When his wife Omana (Jyothika) files for divorce, alleging his homosexuality, the narrative explores the ensuing ripple effects within their family and community. The study aims to analyze the societal impact and challenges depicted in the film, examine storytelling techniques and character development, and evaluate the normalization of queer themes in cinema. Mixed methodology through qualitative and quantitative methods. Mixed methodology is utilised including scene analysis and survey method.

Key Words: Representation, Queer community, Malayalam cinema, Homosexuality, Kaathal

ABSTRACT

The study by aims to investigate the impact of emotionally appealing advertisements on the consumer behaviour of college students in Wayanad district, Kerala, with a specific focus on Oreo cookies advertisements. The research objectives are to analyse the effects of emotional advertisements in building brand loyalty and trust among students in Wayanad, to examine the impact of emotionally appealed advertising on the purchase intentions of college students in Wayanad district and finally, to assess the influence of different emotional appeals (e.g., love, humour, happiness, excitement) used in advertisements on the brand attitudes of college students in Wayanad. The researcher employed a quantitative research methodology, utilizing a survey as the primary data collection tool. The sample size consisted of 120 respondents, selected using a convenient sampling method. The findings of the study indicate that emotionally appealed advertising significantly influenced the students' perceptions and trust in the brand, which in turn impacted their consumer buying behaviour. Furthermore, the study reveals that students tend to share emotionally appealed advertisements with their peers and family members, and they exhibit a preference for advertisements with more emotional content.

Keywords: Emotionally appealed advertisements, Purchase decision, Consumer behaviour

ABSTRACT

This study aims to understand and evaluate the phenomenon of online radicalization among young Instagram users. Specifically, it investigates the impact of various social media campaigns on the knowledge, attitudes, and behavior of youth and examines the role of social media algorithms in promoting extremist ideologies and facilitating the radicalization process. Employing a quantitative research approach, data is collected through structured online surveys distributed to a representative sample of young Instagram users. The survey gathers information on exposure to social media campaigns, changes in knowledge and attitudes toward radical ideologies, and interactions with Instagram's content recommendation algorithms. Statistical methods are used to analyze the data, identifying significant patterns and correlations. The study aims to reveal the extent to which social media campaigns affect youth knowledge, attitudes, and behaviors, and how Instagram's algorithms promote extremist content. The findings will contribute to a broader understanding of online radicalization processes among youth, providing valuable insights for policymakers, educators, and social media platforms. This research seeks to inform the development of effective strategies to prevent online radicalization and promote safer online environments for young users.

ABSTRACT

This research study conducts a comparative analysis of the psychopathic traits exhibited by the characters Christopher from the film Ratsasan and Dr. Alphonse Kurian from the series Forensic, based on the characteristics of psychopathy outlined by Robert D. Hare in his 1999 work. The primary objectives are to analyse the psychopathic behaviours of these two characters, compare the portrayal of their psychopathic personalities, and examine the early childhood experiences and traumatic events that shaped their psychopathic tendencies. A qualitative research approach was used, involving in-depth analysis of the characters' actions, dialogues, and backstories as depicted in the respective media. Data was collected through close observation and critical interpretation of the relevant scenes and character development arcs. The findings indicate that both Christopher and Dr. Kurian display classic psychopathic traits, such as a lack of empathy, manipulative behaviour, and disregard for social norms The comparative analysis provides novel insights into how writers and directors can craft complex, multidimensional psychopathic personalities. The findings also have implications for understanding the psychological factors that can lead to the development of psychopathic tendencies.

ABSTRACT

This study aims to understand the perception of youth towards experimental horror films in Malayalam cinema, with a specific focus on Rahul Sadasivan's movies Bramayugam and Bhoothakaalam. The objectives of the research are to understand the perception of youth towards experimental horror films in Malayalam and to analyses the thematic elements and storytelling techniques used in Rahul Sadasivan's movies Bramayugam and Bhoothakaalam and how they differ from other Malayalam horror films. The study will employ a mixed-methods approach, utilizing both quantitative and qualitative data collection techniques. A survey will be conducted among youth to understand their attitudes, preferences and perceptions towards experimental Malayalam horror films. A comparative textual analysis of Bramayugam and Bhoothakaalam will be carried out to identify the unique thematic elements, narrative structures, visual styles and storytelling techniques employed by director Rahul Sadasivan. These will be contrasted with the tropes and conventions typically found in mainstream Malayalam horror films. The findings are expected to shed light on the youth's receptiveness towards unconventional horror films that deviate from commercial formulas. It will also highlight the innovative approaches used by Sadasivan to craft compelling horror narratives. The study aims to contribute to the limited academic discourse on Malayalam horror cinema and its evolution.

ABSTRACT

The study investigates the influence of social media movie reviews on audience perception and movie-watching behavior. Specifically, it examines whether positive or negative movie reviews have a stronger influence on viewers' decision-making and movie-watching behavior, as well as the effects of movie critiques on social media platforms on audience perception. The researcher employed a quantitative approach, using a survey as the primary data collection tool. The findings indicate that social media movie reviews significantly influence consumers' perceptions and their movie consumption behavior, with the results suggesting that social media reviews have a positive impact on audience behavior. The study provides insights into the relationship between social media movie reviews and audience perception, as well as the influence of these reviews on movie-watching behavior, highlighting the importance of social media as a platform for promoting and shaping audience perceptions of films.

ABSTRACT

This research investigates the impact of jewellery advertisements on the youth in Elthuruth municipality, Thrissur, with a focus on three key objectives: The first objective of the research is to understand how jewellery advertisements shape the attitudes and preferences of young consumers. The second objective examines the power of celebrity endorsements in influencing purchasing decisions. The third objective addresses the issue of gender stereotyping in jewellery advertisements. By analysing the responses, the research aims to reveal how these ads reinforce traditional gender roles and perceptions among young viewers.

The study employs a quantitative methodology, utilizing a structured survey method. A Google Form containing 20 questions was designed and distributed to a selected sample of the youth population in Elthuruth. The findings from this study are expected to provide valuable insights into the marketing strategies of jewellery brands and their social implications. It will also offer recommendations for creating more effective and socially responsible advertising campaigns. By understanding the dynamics of advertisement influence, celebrity endorsements, and gender stereotyping, stakeholders can better cater to the evolving preferences and values of the youth.

Key words: Jewellery advertisement, Celebrity endorsement, Consumer behaviour, Gender stereotypes.

ABSTRACT

The study investigates the influence of YouTube content creators on youth buying behavior through human branding. The objectives of the study are to explore the role of YouTube content creators in shaping youth purchasing decisions, to evaluate the effectiveness of human branding strategies employed by these creators, and to assess the psychological and social factors that contribute to the youth's responsiveness to such branding. The researcher employed a mixed methodology, incorporating both survey methods and interviews. The results of the study indicate that YouTube content creators significantly influence youth buying behavior through personalized branding techniques that foster trust and relatability. The study found that factors such as content engagement, perceived authenticity, and social proof play crucial roles in enhancing the effectiveness of human branding. Additionally, the findings reveal that peer influence, personal interests, and the perceived credibility of the content creator are critical in driving youth purchasing decisions. This research contributes to a deeper understanding of the dynamics between digital influencers and consumer behavior in the context of modern digital marketing.

ABSTRACT

The aim of this study is to examine the subtle but significant presence of magical realism in the films of contemporary Indian filmmaker Lijo Jose Pellissery, who is renowned for his realistic tales. I used to explain magical realism and its elements in my introduction, as well as a few Malayalam magical realism films, to get into the world of this genre. The objectives of this research are to highlight and evaluate the narratives and scenes that Lijo Jose Pellissery utilizes to portray magical realism in his realistic films, as well as investigate the ways in which Lijo applies magical realism to address social and political themes. Through the review of literature and methodology grounded in the qualitative method, this research will examine the ways in which Pellissery's films blur the lines between reality and imagination. A detailed scene-by-scene analysis of his notable works will reveal the strategic deployment of magical realist elements, which not only enhance the narrative complexity but also offer an insightful criticism of societal norms and human experiences. The findings of this study demonstrate that Pellissery's use of magical realism serves as a narrative device to explore aspects of identity, morality and the human condition, ultimately contributing to a deeper understanding of the cinematic representation of reality. The findings will highlight Lijo Jose Pellissery's unique style of magical realism as well as his talent for creating visually striking and provocative films that combine the extraordinary with the commonplace. Overall, the research results in the films of Lijo Jose Pellissery effectively combine magical realism with realistic storylines to produce an unusual cinematic experience that subverts preconceptions and generates amazement.

Key Words : Magical realism, Lijo Jose Pellissery, Social and political themes, Realistic storyline.

ABSTARCT

This research project aims to investigate the impact of food vlogs on the dietary habits of teenagers. With the growing stage of changing dietary habits, understanding the impact of digital platforms for watching food vlogs, and fostering support and viewership for food vlogs, this study will adopt quantitative surveys to collect comprehensive data from teenagers in Sulthan Bathery municipality. The quantitative aspect will focus on examining the frequency and nature of food vlogs and their impact on teenager's dietary habits. It will also assess the role of food vlogs in checking teenager's dietary patterns and consumption of new food spots and new items as something new. The study also checked the quality of food vlogger reviews and how the audience depended on the food vloggers. Also check the role of food vlogs for sales promotion and audience engagement level.

By using quantitative data, this study aims to provide insights into the effectiveness of food vlogs on teenagers's dietary habits. Food content on YouTube can be educational, providing new knowledge about food and culture from different regions. Watching food vlogs can expose teens to a variety of foods, and frequent YouTube viewing and watching of food vlogs can lead to a more sedentary lifestyle in teens. Food vloggers and the content they present can subconsciously influence teens to choose unhealthy foods that are high in calories but low in nutrition. Teens who watch more food content on YouTube tend to spend more money on food and have a greater preference for unhealthy fast food and snack brands. There is a potential dose-response relationship, where greater screen time and engagement with food brands on social media predict higher consumption of unhealthy foods among teenagers. This research shows that while food vlogs on YouTube can have educational benefits, they also pose the risk of promoting unhealthy eating behaviors and lifestyles in teenagers through the influence of food vloggers and the content they present, potentially expanding their culinary skills.

Key words: food vlogs , Teenagers, Dietary habit.
