Report of Department level activity
Title of the Programme: One day Seminar on "Evolution of life" in Association with Kerala Sasthra Sahithya Parishath (KSSP) in the memory of Charles Darwin.

Date: 16th February 2018.

Venue: Chithrasala

Charles Darwin is a well known evolutionary biologist who wrote the world famous Book on evolution called "Origin of Species". In connection with his birthday celebrations, Department of Microbiology organized this one day seminar in association with KSSP, Asia's No 1 science organization with a moto to revolutionize the society with a scientific base.

The class was handled by Mr. V. S. Chacko, retired head master and a Biology professor, Nirmalagiri School Kabanigiri and Mr. Tomy, a retired Physics teacher from the same school. The programme was inaugurated by Dr. A. O. Roy, Principal and felicitated by Mr. Shelji Mathew, Professor of Tourism studies. Head of the Department Mr. Abdul Bari welcome the gathering and Mr. Tomy introduced the subject.

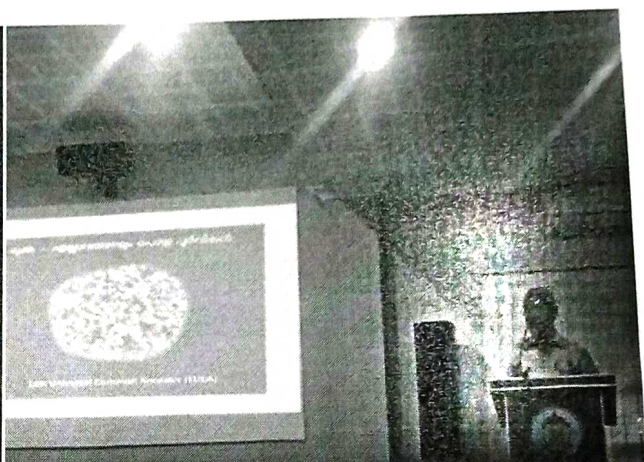

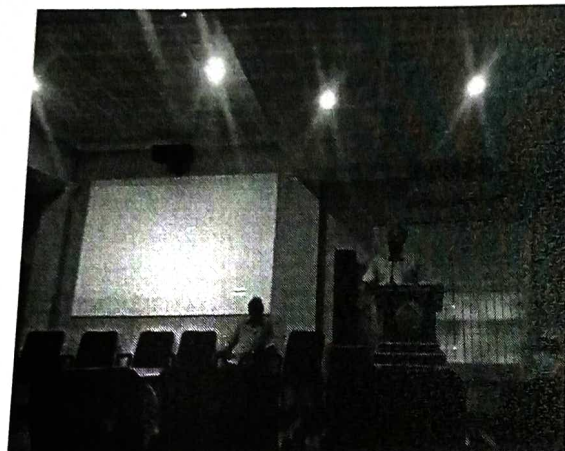

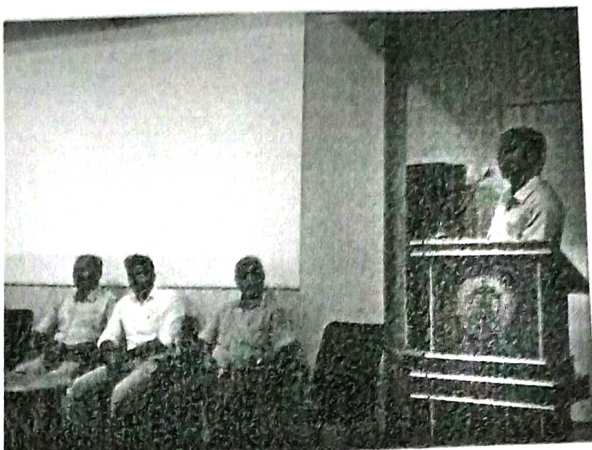

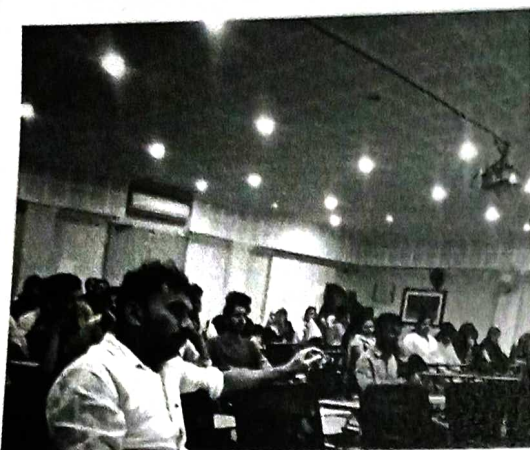

The session was handled by Mr. V. S. Chacko from 11.30 to 1.30. He stated the facts and principles behind the theory of evolution put forth by Charles Darwin centuries back. The current Indian political scenario was also mentioned by both the speakers and reminded the audience about the importance of revival of society with a scientific, evidence based concepts. Mr. Chacko was eloquent in the subject and he could narrate the situation years back when Darwin started his journey in his Ship to the Galappagos islands followed by the scripting of his book.

There was an audience of around 60 from both Microbiology and Biochemistry Department. The students were interactive well in the discussions followed by the class. Many questions related to the theory of evolution were raised by the students and ignited the minds of many.
